

Health Industries (Life Sciences & Pharmaceuticals)

As AI expands across diagnostics, patient engagement, and clinical workflows, a growing trust gap is emerging. Privacy Week 2026 spotlights the core issue: limited visibility into where AI runs and how patient data is used.

This infographic highlights key findings from research commissioned by BDO—exposing today's privacy blind spots and the biggest opportunities to build trusted, transparent AI driven care.

of healthcare executives who responded to the survey have identified employee training and awareness as key to mitigating AI risks.

say they have a privacy compliance/control framework, but only 24% review it annually.

STRATEGIES TO REDUCE AI RISKS

Only 22% of health industries assess AI risk both before implementation and continuously when in use.

30% say the person most likely to have formal responsibility for AI is a senior manager in legal/compliance or a senior manager in risk.
